April 18th, 2018 • 4 – 5 pm

Lola Loustaunau, Sociology PhD student

Union organizing is always more difficult when workers come from different countries, speak different languages, and are separated by legal status – including many whose legal situation is insecure. But this is the reality of a growing portion of the U.S. economy. How can such workers effectively organize? Come hear first-hand evidence from an intensive campaign among Portland bakery workers.

All lectures in the series will be held at the ERB Memorial Union, Miller Room on the University of Oregon campus.
